Azimuth Twin Barrel Tourbillon

Inspired by the most hard core contemporary super cars that only the most well heeled and affluent watch connoisseurs can appreciate, Azimuth "Twin Barrel Tourbillon"

(TBT) represents a brand new era of "micro-machine making", with its inspiration drawn from the sexy silhouettes and raw muscle power of the high end market of super cars.

Fashioned and CNC cut from a solid block of Titanium, this ultra lightweight case similar to the racing bodies of super cars, is adorned with plates of carbon fibre fitted into the recesses at the sides as well as the back of the case.

Examining the domed cockpit of this TBT and you will realise that the highly contoured windscreen is a work of art that gives an added dimension to the aesthetics of the case. At the 6 o'clock position beats a massive Tourbillon mechanism with KIF shock absorption system which acts as the "suspension" for the balance staff and the massive cage. As with the finishing of some of the engine blocks of super cars, the Tourbillon Center Bridge is also "Black Gold" plated to give it a more sporting feel. The high beat 28,800 VPH 5-day (120 hrs) power reserve Tourbillon movement is perhaps the equivalent of a turbocharged V12.

Monaco Vintage Calibre 11 Chronograph

Steve McQueen's smile says it all. At the wheel of his sports car, he's in charge. Tough, a free spirit, sporty, he loved breaking the rules. The original Monaco broke all the rules too. Launched in 1969, when everything changed forever, it achieved two firsts.

The first water resistant chronograph in a square case and the first automatic chronograph movement. If its performance was exceptional, its unique look made it the must-have watch for designers and trend-setters. The unique vintage design of this chronograph makes it really stand out. The brushed, dark grey dial is the perfect foil to the hour and minute hands with their luminous markers and sub-dials touches of racing red, the all red second hand, and the red hour markers. Chronograph minutes are at 9 o'clock, and running seconds at 3 o'clock and their sub-counters have striking black dials and rhodium plated hands. The hand applied horizontal indexes are an eye-catching feature. The design is completed by the Heuer logo at 12 balancing the angled date window at 6, while the polished crown at 9 o'clock adds another special touch. The sapphire crystal case back shows off the decorated Calibre 11 movement. This limited edition of 18860 chronographs has a black perforated strap fitted with a folding buckle and safety push-buttons.
